The War Today...

By DeWitt MacKenzie
AP War Analyst

INDIA'S food shortage, which I reported to you early this year might develop into a serious situation for this great sub-continent of 400,000,000 population, is now said to have reached a critical stage.

Word from New Delhi, the capital, is that the government has called a conference, representing all parts of the country, to devise means of bringing emergency relief. This action follows widespread reports for food, and almost daily reports of looting of grain stores. It is estimated that 125,000,000 Indians—more than a quarter of the population—are suffering from malnutrition. Prices of food have zoomed up three to eight times above pre-war levels.

Such a crisis is particularly grave at any time for a country like India where the majority of the people are always hungry. I realize that's a strong statement, but it's the outcome of personal investigation on the ground. Untold millions never know what it is to have a full stomach.

When I left India in February, observers were apprehensive lest the already bad food shortage worsen. They were fearful that designing people might contrive to merge this crisis with the grave political situation which had grown out of the Indian leaders' rejection of the British government's proposals for dominion status after the war.

3 Dead, Many Homeless As Floods, Storms Sweep Ohio

(By Associated Press)

Three persons were dead and three missing today in the wake of heavy rains and windstorms which swept through northern and eastern sections of Ohio.

The dead: Charles Palmer, 32-year-old civilian defense volunteer, killed when he touched a high tension power line blown down during a wind storm at Steubenville.

Elgy Gardner, 44, farmer at Pleasant Hill near Steubenville, electrocuted during a storm.

David Meese, 8, struck by lightning at Brightwood, near New Philadelphia.

Missing in the Steubenville area are Mrs. Charles McNeil, 36, and her 14-year-old daughter, and Andrew Thompson, 50. The three were believed to have perished when flood waters demolished their homes.

Fire Chief Edward Green reckoned damage in the Steubenville area would exceed $100,000. It was reported unofficially that approximately five inches of rain fell at Steubenville yesterday in two-hour period.

The city's main water line from the Ohio river supply source was washed out by the torrent and a city service crew was making emergency repairs.

Flood waters halted production temporarily at the Wheeling Steel Corp.'s plant.

Lake Erie docks were damaged slightly in the Lakeside area after a northeast storm battered the Marblehead peninsula last night.

Lisbon Barn Burns

A large barn on the farm owned by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, four miles west of Lisbon, was destroyed by fire when struck by lightning about 6 p. m. Wednesday during the heavy electrical and rainstorm which swept the district.

The farm purchased by a group of veterans of World War I several years ago for a clubhouse and site for outings but was never developed, and has been occupied in recent years by the Carl DeLand family.

Lightning also struck the home of Ray Lewis on S. Jefferson st., in Lisbon, knocking chimney bricks loose.

Akron Plants Affected

An estimated 27,000 war workers were idle in Akron when high waters caused power plant shutdown at the Goodyear Aircraft Corp. and the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. Goodyear officials, where 20,000 men and women were unable to work in the plant from mid-afternoon yesterday until early today, said 200,000 gallons of water flooded.

GREAT BATTLE RAGES ON EASTERN FRONT

Reds Admit Germans Have Made Gains In Area Around Belgorod

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW, July 8.—Fresh Nazi reserves were reported pushing through smoke and dust along paths marked by wrecked machines and the dead today to bolster the Kursk plains offensive which the Red army, fighting more brilliantly than ever before, has limited to small gains in the Belgorod sector.

Russian forces slew 30,000 Germans, destroyed or damaged 1,539 tanks and shot down 649 planes during the first three days of the battle, it was announced officially.

Nazi air force squadrons are attached constantly to the invasion armored columns under a new German plan of attack by which Hitler's high command hopes to pinch off the 60-mile deep Soviet salient extending westward from Kursk. The immediate assignment of the Germans obviously is to attempt to push north from Belgorod and south from Orel, 165 miles apart, to a junction somewhere behind the Russian-held rail city.

One Of Greatest Battles

(A Berlin military spokesman declared in a radio broadcast that tank battles yesterday in the area of Belgorod and south of Orel were "the greatest" ever fought on the eastern front.)

The Russians declared flatly that Belgorod was the only area in which the Germans made any advances, and these were limited to regions where good roads and vast stretches of open fields handicapped the defense.

Near Belgorod, said a special communique issued this morning, the concentrated German strength has "succeeded in driving a wedge, to an insignificant distance, into defenses," enveloping several villages at a cost of "tremendous losses."

(In a DNB broadcast a German propaganda agency, the International information bureau, asserted

Effect 2 New Landings In Georgia Area

Japanese Naval Losses Now Put at Nine and Possibly 11 Warships Sunk, According to MacArthur Communique; Most of 800 Crewmen of Helena Safe

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, July 8.—United States jungle fighters battled today within six miles of the Japanese air base of Munda from two new landing points on New Georgia island in the Central Solomons area where the enemy's hold has been weakened by a crushing naval defeat.

The new landings were disclosed today by Gen. Douglas MacArthur in a communique which also contained the news that in the warship engagement during the darkness of July 5-6 above Munda in the Kula gulf at least nine and possibly 11 Japanese cruisers and destroyers were sunk against the loss of the Cruiser U.S.S. Helena.

(A dispatch quoting sources at the South Pacific headquarters of Admiral William F. Halsey said no other American warship even sustained damage in the engagement and that most of the more than 800 reported aboard the Cruiser Helena were saved.)

The growing weight of the Pacific offensive began to tell against Japan at the other end of the 700-mile arc as well. General MacArthur announced that in the jungle fight on the approaches to the Japanese air base of Salamaua, New Guinea, Australian troops captured observation hill between Salamaua and Mubo after its Japanese defenders had been killed or demoralized by 106 tons of bombs dropped in less than 45 minutes by Boston attack planes, Mitchell and Liberator bombers.

The new landings which increased the peril to Munda were made Monday, today's communique disclosed. After American warships in the Kula gulf had shelled Munda's supply base at Bairoko anchorage before dawn Monday, the troops swarmed ashore at Rice anchorage, four miles northeast of Bairoko. That landing point is above Munda.

Monday night, other American forces stormed ashore at Zanana, six miles east of Munda. They fanned out in patrols and latest reports were that some of them were fighting the Japanese along the Barikere river.

It was before dawn the following morning that American warships made contact in the Kula gulf above the scene of the latest landing operations with a Japanese cruiser-destroyer force.

Action Is Fast, Furious

The surprised enemy was struck swift and telling blows by the guns of our warships, today's communique said.

"In the first phase of the engagement, four or five hostile destroyers were struck by smashing broadsides that within five minutes destroyed or set afire the entire group," it related.

"Three or possibly four enemy light cruisers were then taken under fire. All were either sunk or afire within 15 minutes. One was reached."

Later while the cruiser Helena's survivors were being rescued, "our destroyers intercepted and sank two or three enemy ships attempting to escape from the gulf and damaged the third."

The dispatch from Admiral Halsey's headquarters said American warships trapped a numerically superior enemy force in the narrow gulf at close range and forced him to fight.

Previously General MacArthur's headquarters had listed the enemy's Kula gulf losses as six ships probably sunk and four damaged.

While American Corsair fighters were in the air yesterday patrolling above Rendova island, which we seized June 30 within artillery shelling distance of Munda, and over our landing forces at Zanana, they encountered Japanese bombers escorted by 58 Zeros. The resultant dogfights increased to approximately 190 the number of planes the enemy has expended trying to wrest mastery of the skies over the central Solomons from the Americans.

Out of that latest force of raiders, the Corsairs shot down three bombers and nine Zeros at a cost of only one of their own. The communique today did not make clear whether the raiders succeeded in breaking through to their targets.

Our own bombers got in some heavy blows on Jap bases.

GERMANS FEAR NEW ATTACKS

Disclose Arrival of U. S. Warships to Join Mediterranean Fleet

(By Associated Press)

LONDON, July 8.—The Berlin radio reported today that battle units of the Mediterranean fleet, reinforced by recently arrived American cruisers and aircraft carriers, had left Gibraltar, leading "to the supposition that the American allied commander is preparing for an attack against Europe."

The broadcast which was recorded by The Associated Press, declared that the Allies, in addition to strong concentrations of warships and transports, have 44 infantry divisions and 15 to 20 tank formations poised between Morocco and Syria.

These forces were said to include parachute battalions and airborne troops whose task, the broadcast declared, "would be to create at first one or more bridge-heads."

"At first sight," the German radio said, "these figures would appear considerable, but at least half of the Allied forces are regionally and locally tied down," in Algeria, Syria, Palestine, Egypt, Cyprus and elsewhere.

Other forces also are held down by a complicated supply system, while "it is an open secret that General Eisenhower's American divisions have still to be thoroughly overhauled as regards training," the broadcast said.

The available effective forces, therefore, it added, constitute only a fraction of the total Allied troops stationed in the Mediterranean.

Several hundred thousand tons of merchant shipping still remain concentrated at Gibraltar, the Germans said.

The broadcast reports concerning Allied naval movements and manpower were totally without confirmation from any Allied source.

OUR HOPE IN ASIA

Before the United States has avenged Pearl Harbor it will have discovered the importance of China in its plan of security. No doubt it will do this as painfully and slowly as it has discovered—and rediscovered—its dependence on the British empire.

This is the sixth anniversary of the incident at Peiping that marked the beginning of Japan's campaign of Asiatic expansion. Against all the rules of common sense, the Chinese have continued to fight back. They lacked everything they needed, except the one indispensable weapon—their dignity as a people who went sovereignly. That one thing has upset Japan's careful calculations. The Japanese believed the Chinese would yield to reason—Japanese reason—as well as force. They have yielded to neither.

Hope of a strong China ousting the invader from its land and furnishing bases for the isolation and reduction of the Japanese islands from the sea and sky is at the bottom of all Allied plans for victory over Japan. It is a left-handed tribute to the Chinese that the United States and Great Britain both take their continued resistance for granted.

The Chinese, with vastly greater provocation, have caused none of the uneasiness in London and Washington that has marked the attitude of the Russians in their military alliance with Axis enemies. They still are waiting, as they have waited half a decade, for recognition of their rightful place in the world alliance against tyranny. In the future of United States security, no nation has earned more gratitude or deserved more considerate treatment.

SOMETHING HAPPENED

Cautious commentators wisely are refraining from conclusions about the new turn in the war marked by heavy German action on the Russian front and bolstered aerial resistance against Allied air attacks in the Mediterranean.

However, one conclusion may be reached safely. The military situation no longer is static. Like two fighters who have sparred at long range to "feel out" each other, the United Nations and the Axis now are getting down to the summer's serious business. A month ago, June was going to bring the disclosure of the war's climactic shape. It must happen now in July.

Perhaps Hitler and his advisers have been teased into making the first move to their own disadvantage—showing their hand because they could not afford to play a waiting game any longer. They could not stay on the defensive forever. When Germany failed to win the war in 1940, time ceased to be its ally and became its enemy.

NO UNITY, BUT THE TRUTH

Theoretically, former Justice Byrnes should have kept Vice President Wallace and Secretary of Commerce Jones from getting into a public fight. Also theoretically, he should have stopped the fight as soon as it started. But the gentlemen are still talking. Contrary to all apprehensive bleats about what this is doing to national unity, only the politicians are worried.

The longer they talk, the more interesting their argument becomes. Apparently, they are on opposite sides of a vastly larger issue than the administration of Mr. Wallace's bureau of economic warfare. Some signs indicate that what they are on the verge of threshing out is the issue of unlimited vs. limited public spending. The public wants to know more about that.

Unfortunately, it isn't in the cards. Something will stop the argument, perhaps a congressional investigation, which almost certainly would be delegated to sympathetic hands. The argument couldn't run its course even without interference, because already it has ceased to be news that two members of President Roosevelt's cabinet are calling each other names. Things are happening so fast these days that two gentlemen can't even hold an audience for a good fight.

LIFE IN STAFFORD SPRINGS

Employers and union leaders in Stafford Springs, Conn., are taking credit for an agreement which has given virtually every employed resident of the village a simultaneous vacation this week. All government contracts in force in the eight woolen mills that keep the population busy called for a week's vacation with pay, so it seemed more logical to shut down the mills than to stagger working schedules.

Life in Stafford Springs without work must be pleasant. When work is resumed, life still will be pleasant. Everybody will be rested. Tension will be gone. Little stresses and strains won't be in so much danger of getting out of perspective. No one imagines that it is going to be possible for every person in the United States to take a vacation, or that mass vacations could be arranged, but if they could be, war production and war morale both would benefit. Most of us still are subject to suspicion for not working hard enough, but signs multiply that working too hard takes a heavy toll of efficiency in wartime, too.

If the statisticians don't keep an eye on production charts for the Stafford Springs mills when the village's mass vacation is over, they will be missing a bet.

PLACEHOLDERS

Walter Lippmann's conclusion that recent events in the government constitute an argument against the third term, because it has given the country "a tired and rapidly aging administration," instead of the "revitalized" government that results from bringing in new men when administrations change, will be placed in the active file of the New Deal opposition. It will be an engaging thought in 1944.

When the fourth term buildup gets moving at top speed, it may be plainer than it is now that President Roosevelt is the central personality in a kind of government which, dominated by half-seen figures who come and go and a few figures, like Harry Hopkins and Felix Frankfurter, who stay on forever, has endured without change for a decade. Secretary Ickes, they say, is increasing in stature, but Secretary Perkins seems to be about as usual. The President's cabinet grows no stronger.

Of course, the placeholders could be removed and new blood brought in, but Mr. Lippmann, among others, is not hopeful of the rise of new men. By 1944 there may be new titles, but back of them will be the same old faces. To be different, he says, would require a "rededication, beginning at the top, of the whole nation to the cause in which we are now engaged." It looks like too large an order.

GUARDING YOUR HEALTH

Do Not Handle Sick, Stray Dogs

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
WE HEAR from several sources that the stray dog situation has created a condition of alarm in some communities. If the stray dog situation is as bad elsewhere as it is in my own locality. I don't wonder that it might be the cause of concern. Owners who cannot get meat or cannot afford meat or dog feed and are too kind hearted to do away with the dogs simply dump them out some place. The Union Depot in my home town has had a succession of stray dogs sleeping in the lobby for the past six months.

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

A general practitioner in a smaller town nearby says that there is really an epidemic of hydrophobia over hydrophobia on account of the stray dog situation and suggests that a word from a physician or public health official would help to clarify the situation. He says that he knows of more than 50 people who are taking the Pasteur treatment as the result of having been near two pups—and the pups did not have hydrophobia.

Hydrophobia Rare Disease
Two or three things can be said very definitely. In the first place, hydrophobia is a rare disease even among dogs. Just because a dog is astray or nervous or bad tempered is no reason to think that he is carrying hydrophobia. It is even rarer in human beings.

Only about 30 per cent of dogs who are actually bitten by another mad dog develop rabies. And if 100 people were actually bitten by a rabid dog so that the virus entered the skin, only about 10 per cent of them would become infected.

In the second place, in order for infection to occur the skin must be broken and infective material from the dog's saliva enter the wound. The skin, of course, is usually broken by the dog's bite. But here again there is a sort of preventive instituted by Nature, because when the saliva is heavily infected, the dog has usually reached the paralytic stage so that his jaw muscles are paralyzed and he cannot bite.

Avoid Petting Sick Dogs
Some people have exposed themselves by petting a sick dog when they have an open cut and the dog's saliva has dripped on this cut. Here is another piece of common sense which points toward prevention, which is: do not handle a sick dog at all even if it is you own until you know what is the matter with it.

Still another piece of comfort is that even if infection occurs in a human being, prevention is pretty certain with the Pasteur treatment. This treatment can be begun even several days or weeks after the bite has occurred and still be perfectly effective. A full course of this treatment reduces the possibility of the disease developing in a person who has been bitten by a mad dog from 10 per cent, as mentioned above, to less than 1/2 of 1 per cent.

Local treatment of the wound is also advisable—opening it up, draining it and cauterizing it.

Danger Minimized
This is not meant to minimize a hazard in a foolish way. Naturally the stray dog should be handled by the public health authorities and probably in the present state of the dog food problem it is humane to do away with them. But with our present scientific knowledge, the actual danger can reasonably be minimized.

Before the fire department could rescue the mare the laddies had to call for the help of a wrecker with a hoist.

WAR BOOM DROPS RELIEF EXPENSES

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, July 8.—The war boom has cut Ohio's relief rolls and expenditures below what was believed to be the "irreducible minimum." State Welfare Director Herbert R. Mooney reported today. Commenting on a report of relief activities covering the first half of 1943 in Ohio, Mooney asserted: "War-time employment has brought the relief rolls throughout the state far below what officials previously said would be the irreducible minimum for the number of cases receiving assistance."

He said the state's case load average for the first six months of the year was 19,038, a reduction of 52 per cent as compared with the corresponding 1942 period. The current record was 71 per cent below the average case load of 66,000 for the first half of 1941, he added.

The welfare director said estimates for the first half of the year included incomplete figures for June, but added that early reports indicated the case load for last month would drop to a new 10-year low of approximately 15,400, representing an approximate expenditure of $540,000, another new low.

Mooney estimated the state's relief bill for the first half of the year would total $3,779,140, a drop of 42.6 per cent below the $6,582,604 spent during the corresponding period last year.

NAZI LOSSES HIGH IN SOVIET FIGHT

Russians Claim 30,000 Germans Killed During Three-day Battle

The Nazi forces had destroyed 400 Soviet tanks and knocked down 193 planes in the Belgorod and Orel sectors. The broadcast, recorded by The Associated Press, also said that deeply echeloned Russian positions had been broken.

While the German losses in men and material were regarded here as the greatest single blow ever inflicted upon the German war machine, the Russians warned against undue optimism.

"It would be wrong for us to underestimate the strength of the German troops conducting the big offensive," said the communique. "German forces here are great. Today it is too early to formulate a final conclusion concerning the outcome of the battles."

30 Nazi Divisions Active

The special announcement reported the Germans had hurled approximately 450,000 men, or 30 divisions—14 tank divisions, one motorized, and 15 infantry—into the attempt to capture Kursk, one prong driving southward from the Orel region and another northward from Belgorod.

(In a Berlin broadcast heard in London last night by The Associated Press, Lieut. Kurt Jeserich, Transocean military commentator, described the fighting as "the battle for Kursk," and made the first German admission that the Nazis had launched an offensive. Nazi propaganda previously had held to the line that it was the Russians who opened the attack the morning of July 5.

"The Germans asserted they had made gains in the Orel sector at the northern end of the line as well as the Belgorod despite resistance of '400,000 crack Soviet troops supported by very strong tank and artillery forces.'"

The Russians, reporting that "the Red army has before it the largest and most powerfully armed enemy any country ever has faced," declared the Germans had brought up air reinforcements from western Europe and Yugoslavia as well as from other sectors of the eastern front.

Both sides said great air battles were raging.

New Super-Secret Plans Rolling Off U. S. Defense Lines

WASHINGTON, July 8.—New super-secret fighter planes designed to meet up-to-the-minute combat conditions have started rolling off the assembly lines to take their place in the stepped up aerial offensive of the Allies.

Disclosure that new fighter types are in production was made by Charles E. Wilson, executive vice president of the War Production board, who declined, for security reasons, to reveal any details whatever.

Asked at a press conference late yesterday whether the new sky battlers were entirely new jobs or modifications of existing ones, Wilson replied with a laconic "both."

WPB Chairman Donald M. Nelson said it was these changes in types, necessitated by combat experience, that presented the greatest single obstacle to greater volume production.

"There are lots of changes," Nelson said. "When changes come they upset the dollar volume."

Wilson expressed confidence the new fighters would prove effective in battle "or we wouldn't be producing them."

When all present production facilities reach their ultimate maximum, Wilson predicts this country would be able to turn out "in excess of 10,000 planes monthly." This peak will not be reached until some time in 1944. (Plane production in May exceeded 7,000, the highest so far announced.)

Nelson and Wilson told reporters June output of planes was about the same as in May "in numbers," but greater when figured on the basis of weight. This indicated a continuing trend toward heavier planes, including four-engine bombers.

EXTRA SUGAR FOR INDUSTRIAL USERS

Because of an acute shortage of non-rationed corn syrup and corn sugar, the regional office of price administration today announced that effective immediately certain large users who have used these products can now obtain additional allotment of cane and beet sugar by applying at their War Price and Rationing board.

Among the "industrial users" who are eligible for replacement allotments under the emergency provisions are bakers, beverage firms, ice cream manufacturers and pharmaceutical companies.

Charles H. Schreiber, regional rationing executive at Cleveland, said that OPA district offices are authorized to act on the applications from bakers and pharmaceutical companies but that all other requests for special sugar allotment should be referred to the regional OPA office.

Axis Plane Toll Listed

permit ready inspection of the parcels.

Make Addresses Legible

Addressees must be legible. For Army personnel the package should bear, in addition to sender's name and address, the name rank, Army serial number, branch of service, organization, A. P. O. number of the addressee and the postoffice through which the parcels are to be routed.

Parcels for Navy personnel, including Marine Corps and Coast Guard, should show, in addition to the name and address of the sender, the name, rank, or rating of the addressee, the naval unit to which he is assigned, with the Navy number of the unit, or the name of the ship and fleet postoffice through which the parcels are to be routed.

Since members of the armed forces are amply provided with food and clothing, such articles should not be included in Christmas packages. Not more than one Christmas parcel or package will be accepted for mailing in any one week from the same person to the same addressee, Beardmore said.

Articles in combination packages of toilet preparations, hard candies or soaps should be packed so they will not damage contents of the entire parcel, or its covering. Sharp-pointed or sharp-edged instruments, such as razors, knives, etc., must have edges protected so they will not cut through the coverings.

Packages may bear, on the outside cover, holiday greeting inscriptions, provided they do not interfere with the address.

Letters or packages containing money may not be registered, but letters containing valuable papers may be. Only gifts of extraordinary value may be registered.

The use of postal money orders to transmit gifts of money to members of the armed forces outside continental United States, is recommended, since, at many places where forces are stationed laws prohibit bringing into the region United States money, and such cash gifts could not be used if received. However, postal money orders can be cashed at A. P. O.'s wherever they are received.

The War Today

men long have considered the country fairly safe from the Japs.

However, it must be said—and this is the reason for my writing on the subject today—that any untoward development in the political and food situations might affect the position of Indian security. Subversive interests among the Indian dissidents are straining every nerve to create trouble. The Axis in general and the Japs in particular are pouring propaganda into the country.

Last Monday Japanese Premier Tojo was reported to be in Singapore. One of the objects of his visit was to further his new Asiatic policy, which calls for a federation of all Asiatic countries to face the western world. India looms large in his plans, and Tokyo long has been holding out tantalizing promises on a golden platter.

Settlement of the political difficulty in India, as well as the food crisis, thus are matters of immediate concern.

conduit tunnels from the power-house to plant buildings.

Partial production was resumed at Firestone last night, where 7,000 workers had been sent home because of power failure.

A B. F. Goodrich Co. spokesman said "considerable production was lost" because of lack of power and because of water flooding some departments.

Eight persons were hospitalized with injuries from the rain and wind storm in Akron. Two of the victims were injured when a plane nosed over in landing on a flooded airport.

Evacuation of two Lakeside residential areas in Toledo was completed by coast guardsmen, as Lake Erie waters continued to pour through three breaks in levees. The coast guard reported early today, however, that the pounding of waves apparently was lessening, and expressed the belief the waters would begin to recede.

Coast guardsmen from the Ohio river station at Steubenville also went into action when an inland section of the city was inundated by waters draining from three hills. Coast guard boats were hauled to the scene by trucks and used to evacuate 300 families, who were cared for at Civilian Defense canteens established in churches.

Steubenville was without domestic or industrial water service for several hours following the storm, when Service Director Joseph Lopresto ordered a reservoir supply preserved for fire protection.

A Pennsylvania freight train was wrecked by a fallen tree over the tracks near Cross creek, five miles west of Steubenville, blocking rail traffic.

The storm felled trees and wires in Columbus and flooded streets tied up nearly three dozen buses.

Jefferson County Hit

In Jefferson county a flash flood washed out a 25-foot bridge at Reed's mill on U. S. Route 22, a strategic highway between Steubenville and Cambridge. The structure spanned a small creek normally dry. State highway officials said approaches to a nearby bridge, in use before Route 22 was relocated, would be filled in and traffic rerouted over it.

Washed out in two places, Route 151 between Route 7 and New Alexandria in Jefferson county has been closed to traffic. A number of minor landslides were reported on Route 7 in the same county, although the highway still is open.

Congress Mops Up On Appropriations

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, July 8—A growing give-and-take attitude between house and senate battling over appropriations spread today to the hotly-debated proposal which would allow the makers with virtual hiring and firing power over war agency employees in the higher wage brackets.

As this bill passed the senate it would require confirmation of personnel paid $4,500 a year or more. President Roosevelt called the legislation a "traffic mistake" and the house took a decided stand against it on several occasions.

Anxious though to clear the decks and quit for the summer, the legislators started a movement to compromise the differences, retaining the principle expounded by Senator McKellar (D-Tenn.).

Rep. Taber (R-N.Y.), who fought the original plan, drew up an amendment to the $2,311,697,224 war agencies appropriation. His idea would require confirmation of only newly-hired war agency workers earning $5,500 a year or more. Those on the payroll before July 1 would be left undisturbed. Those hired since then and until Nov. 1 would keep their jobs but their names would be submitted, along with any additional appointments, to the senate for confirmation henceforth.

Acceptance of the compromise by the two houses would send the big appropriations measure to the White House.

Senate conferees gave in to house pressure in signing a report designed to clear the way for passage of the $233,000,000 "catch-all" second deficiency appropriations bill.

The report struck out a senate

It's Not Too Early To Think of Mailing Overseas Presents

permit ready inspection of the parcels.

Make Addresses Legible
Addresses must be legible. For Army personnel the package should bear, in addition to sender's name and address, the name rank, Army serial number, branch of service, organization, A. P. O. number of the addressee and the postoffice through which the parcels are to be routed.

Parcels for Navy personnel, including Marine Corps and Coast Guard, should show, in addition to the name and address of the sender, the name, rank, or rating of the addressee, the naval unit to which he is assigned, with the Navy number of the unit, or the name of the ship and fleet postoffice through which the parcels are to be routed.

Since members of the armed forces are amply provided with food and clothing, such articles should not be included in Christmas packages. Not more than one Christmas parcel or package will be accepted for mailing in any one week from the same person to the same addressee, Beardmore said.

Articles in combination packages of toilet preparations, hard candies or soaps should be packed so they will not damage contents of the entire parcel, or its covering. Sharp-pointed or sharp-edged instruments, such as razors, knives, etc., must have edges protected so they will not cut through the coverings.

Packages may bear, on the outside cover, holiday greeting inscriptions, provided they do not interfere with the address.

Letters or packages containing money may not be registered, but letters containing valuable papers may be. Only gifts of extraordinary value may be registered.

The use of postal money orders to transmit gifts of money to members of the armed forces outside continental United States, is recommended, since, at many places where forces are stationed laws prohibit bringing into the region United States money, and such cash gifts could not be used if received. However, postal money orders can be cashed at A. P. O.'s wherever they are received.

The War Today

men long have considered the country fairly safe from the Japs.

However, it must be said—and this is the reason for my writing on the subject today—that any untoward development in the political and food situations might affect the position of Indian security. Subversive interests among the Indian dissidents are straining every nerve to create trouble. The Axis in general and the Japs in particular are pouring propaganda into the country.

Last Monday Japanese Premier Tojo was reported to be in Singapore. One of the objects of his visit was to further his new Asiatic policy, which calls for a federation of all Asiatic countries to face the western world. India looms large in his plans, and Tokyo long has been holding out tantalizing promises on a golden platter.

Settlement of the political difficulty in India, as well as the food crisis, thus are matters of immediate concern.

conduit tunnels from the power-house to plant buildings.

Partial production was resumed at Firestone last night, where 7,000 workers had been sent home because of power failure.

A B. F. Goodrich Co. spokesman said "considerable production was lost" because of lack of power and because of water flooding some departments.

Eight persons were hospitalized with injuries from the rain and wind storm in Akron. Two of the victims were injured when a plane nosed over in landing on a flooded airport.

Evacuation of two Lakeside residential areas in Toledo was completed by coast guardsmen, as Lake Erie waters continued to pour through three breaks in levees. The coast guard reported early today, however, that the pounding of waves apparently was lessening, and expressed the belief the waters would begin to recede.

Coast guardsmen from the Ohio river station at Steubenville also went into action when an inland section of the city was inundated by waters draining from three hills. Coast guard boats were hauled to the scene by trucks and used to evacuate 300 families, who were cared for at Civilian Defense canteens established in churches.

Steubenville was without domestic or industrial water service for several hours following the storm, when Service Director Joseph Lopusko ordered a reservoir supply preserved for fire protection.

A Pennsylvania freight train was wrecked by a fallen tree over the tracks near Cross creek, five miles west of Steubenville, blocking rail traffic.

The storm felled trees and wires in Columbus and flooded streets tied up nearly three dozen buses.

Jefferson County II
In Jefferson county a flash flood washed out a 25-foot bridge at Reed's mill on U. S. Route 22, a strategic highway between Steubenville and Cambridge. The structure spanned a small creek normally dry. State highway officials said approaches to a nearby bridge, in use before Route 22 was relocated, would be filled in and traffic rerouted over it.

Washed out in two places, Route 151 between Route 7 and New Alexandria in Jefferson county has been closed to traffic. A number of minor landslides were reported on Route 7 in the same county, although the highway still is open.

Congress Mops Up On Appropriations

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, July 8—A growing give-and-take attitude between house and senate battling over appropriations spread today to the hotly-debated proposal which would invest the lawmakers with virtual hiring and firing power over war agency employees in the higher wage brackets.

As this bill passed the senate it would require confirmation of personnel paid $4,500 a year or more. President Roosevelt called the legislation a "traffic mistake" and the house took a decided stand against it on several occasions.

Anxious though to clear the decks and quit for the summer, the legislators started a movement to compromise the differences, retaining the principle expounded by Senator McKellar (D-Tenn.).

Rep. Taber (R-N.Y.), who fought the original plan, drew up an amendment to the $2,311,697,224 war agencies' appropriation. His idea would require confirmation of only newly-hired war agency workers earning $5,500 a year or more. Those on the payroll before July 1 would be left undisturbed. Those hired since then and until Nov. 1 would keep their jobs but their names would be submitted, along with any additional appointments, to the senate for confirmation henceforth.

Acceptance of the compromise by the two houses would send the big appropriations measure to the White House. Senate conferees gave in to house pressure in signing a report designed to clear the way for passage of the $253,000,000 "catch-all" second deficiency appropriations bill.

The report struck out a senate

DU PONT HOUSE PAINT keeps white houses white

PAINT PROTECTION PAYS

DU PONT House Paint gives you the utmost in protection, because it forms a tough, durable film which guards the surface against rot and decay. And it gives you lasting whiteness, too.

That's because Du Pont House Paint is "self-cleaning"! Like all paints, it collects dirt on exposure to the elements. As time goes on, however, a fine white powder forms on the surface, which is washed away by heavy rains. This powder carries the dirt with it, and exposes a fresh white surface.

This "self-cleaning" process starts after a few months of exposure under normal weather conditions. It may be delayed under unusual climatic or dirt-collecting conditions in extremely sooty industrial communities. Because this "self-cleaning" process is gradual, the wearing qualities of the film are not abnormally affected.

Du Pont "self-cleaning" House Paint, in white and Tru-Tint colors, costs you no more than other good paints.

Because it protects America's war equipment, paint is a vital defense material. Use paint carefully. We will be glad to recommend a reliable painter. He knows how to do the job right, how much or how little paint to use. His skill means savings for you—and paint conservation for America.

15 Ohio NYA Shops Seen As War Training Centers

COLUMBUS, July 8—Ohio has 15 completely equipped National Youth Administration shops which could be converted into training centers for war production workers, the state department of education said today.

The NYA properties are valued at approximately $1,500,000.

Legislation proposed in the U. S. senate would authorize the transfer of such properties to state and local governments.

NYA schools and dormitories are located in Columbus, Chillicothe, Cincinnati, Newark, Portsmouth, Mansfield, Wilberforce and Muskingum colleges, and Miami university.

Neckchiefs worn by enlisted Navy men were first worn in the British Navy to mourn the death of Admiral Nelson.

Smooth Sailing Appears To Be Over For Washington

SENATORS TUMBLE INTO 4TH PLACE FROM NEAR TOP

Detroit and Chicago Take Advantage of Club's Recent Collapse

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

The honeymoon seems to be over for the Washington Senators.

Before the start of the doubleheaders on the fourth of July Washington still was a wonder team and was in a virtual tie with the New York Yankees for first place in the American league.

Today the Senators are in fourth place as the result of losing five of their last six games and even though they are only a single percentage point out of third place their prospects of threatening for the lead are not bright.

The Senators' present plight may be traced to weaknesses that were apparent even before the club collapsed on its current western trip. They had a problem at third base that was so hopeless that Manager Ossie Bluege in desperation finally installed veteran outfielder Bob Johnson at the hot corner.

Since becoming an infielder last Friday the big Indian has hit three home runs and conducted himself capably in the field, but he hasn't been able to hold the club above its challenges. The pitching has been unsatisfactory and the infield play spotty.

Moreover, the Detroit Tigers and Chicago White Sox have taken advantage of the Senators' slump to put on two of the fastest spurts of the season in the American league. The Tigers, who moved into second place yesterday by beating Washington 8-1, have won nine of their last 11 games and the Sox have won eight of 10.

The White Sox nosed out the Boston Red Sox 3-2 when Wally Moses stole home with the bases loaded and two out in the 14th inning.

New York's Yankees completed a sweep of their four game series at St. Louis as Spud Chandler shut out the Browns 2-0 on six hits.

The only other teams to get into action yesterday were Cincinnati and Boston in the National league. They divided a doubleheader. The Reds won the first game 5-1 and lost the second 4-2.

Notre Dame Plans Modified "T" Play

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND, July 8.—Possibility that Notre Dame will abandon or modify its famed T backfield formation, despite the availability of gridiron talent from naval training students, was voiced today by Frank Leahy, coach and athletic director at the South Bend, Ind., university.

Angelo Bertelli, mainstay of last year's fighting Irish backfield, is in the Marine corps reserve and may be transferred, Leahy said, and the only other quarterback available for the T formation is Pennsylvania John F. Jack, a Navy V-12 student.

"I think these boys are being transferred from the campus. I am sure we will have to modify the T system," he added.

Speaking at a chamber of commerce luncheon for representatives of Notre Dame and the United States naval academy yesterday, Leahy declared 15 of Notre Dame's 1942 squad were in the Navy or Marine corps reserves.

More than 3,000 Naval and Marine training students are on the Irish campus, he continued, and "we may have some help from them. We lost a lot of games, but like everyone else we thought is to keep the game going."

REDS STILL HOPE TO GET STARTED

Cincy Moves In at Philadelphia: Split With Braves Yesterday

(By Associated Press)

PHILADELPHIA, July 8.—Still getting nowhere at an incredible pace, the Cincinnati Reds move in here today to see if the Phillies are as inhospitable as the rest of the National league's seaboard teams.

There's a doubleheader, with Johnny Vander Meer and either Clyde Shoun or Ed Heusser pitching for the Reds and St. Johnson and either Newt Kimball or Charlie Fuchs for the Phils.

Yesterday's split with the Braves in Boston gave the Reds four won, eight lost for the eastern trip so far.

After Elmer Riddle had buttoned down the Braves opener, 5 to 1, Bucky Walters ran into his usual 1943 luck and dropped the nightcap, 4 to 2.

Riddle gave up the only run in the first inning as he worked for his tenth victory of the year. The Reds tied it up in the second inning on singles by Eddie Miller and Steve Mesner, some basepath interference, and a fly. They sewed the game up in the third with three unearned runs on two errors, a wild pitch, two singles, and Mesner's fumble.

INDIANS, SENATORS WILL OPEN SERIES

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND, July 8.—For the first time, the Cleveland Indians venture into morning baseball today, meeting the Washington Senators in the opener of a five-game series.

Manager Lou Boudreau indicated the experiment was scheduled as an accommodation for war workers, and might be repeated if attendance proves its value.

The Indians were idle yesterday, when weather postponed a series finale with the Philadelphia Athletics.

Pete Center, 27-year-old Cleveland relief hurler, said he had been reclassified by his draft board into 1-A. From Hazel Green, Ky., Center pitched last year for Baltimore and has a record of one victory and two defeats with the Indians this season.

Balela Ball Proves Boon To Golfers This Summer

(By Associated Press)

DETROIT, July 8.—The Balela ball that baseball men came to despise is by some tests giving the golfer more distance this summer on his booming drives.

This was on the authority today of Dapper Jimmy Demaret, Texas-born Detroit pro, whose tests have changed doubting golfers into cheerful contributors of old golf balls into the reprocessing hopper.

Demaret drove a dozen balls—three from the pro shop shelves and three reprocessed numbers. His longest drive of 255 yards was with an old pellet. The reprocessed ball averaged eight yards more in distance.

A few days later Demaret repeated his experiment and got the same eight-yard difference.

Anniversary Of 'Work Or Fight' Order Finds Baseball Feeling Much Better

BY CHIP ROYAL
AP Features Sports Editor

NEW YORK—Although organized baseball has lost more key players than ever before, this second year of World War II finds it in better shape than at the same time in the first World War.

It was just 25 years ago this month (July, 1918), that the "work or fight" order of Provost Marshal General Enoch H. Crowder went out.

General Crowder, the selective service head of that day, announced that "every man of draft age must work or fight." The edict was directed "not only at idlers, but at draft registrants in non-useful occupations regardless of their family dependence status."

There was some question at first as to whether it affected baseball players but general belief was that came under the "non-useful class" defined as "persons occupied in sports and amusements."

Local draft boards started notifying various major and minor league players to get essential jobs or be inducted. This took the thoughts of the players from baseball. They wanted to do right. Frequent assurances, coming direct from the capital, were that the administration did not want baseball suspended.

Mann Comes To Bat

In the middle of all the uncertainty, Outfielder Les Mann of the Chicago Cubs received a letter from a soldier with the AEF in France which said:

"Major League baseball will not come to a halt if the American Expeditionary Force has anything to say about it. We over on this side are very much worried about this work or fight proposition. The baseball scores are meat and drink for all the fans over here. I have talked with quite a few (some of them generals) and all deplore the fact that the greatest of all sports is to be suspended."

Shortly afterwards, on July 19, Secretary of War Newton D. Baker ruled that ballplayers came under the "work or fight" order.

On July 21, the American Association and the Eastern League closed their seasons. President Ban Johnson of the American League said his circuit also would quit for the duration of the 21st, but he changed his mind and the league kept going.

Secretary Baker eased the situation immensely on July 26, ruling that ballplayers would be allowed until Sept. 1 to find essential jobs. Baker said there was a difference between organized baseball and some other occupations classed as non-productive.

Baseball, Baker said, was more integrated because successful operation depended upon preservation of all major league teams scattered throughout the country while in other non-essential occupations—waiters, clerks, bartenders, domestic servants—the "work or fight" order had merely a series of local effects.

"I think it would be an unfortunate thing," declared Baker, "to have so wholesome a recreation as baseball destroyed if it can be continued by use of persons not available for essential war service."

The big league managers asked Baker not to put the order into effect until Oct. 15, saying 237 players in the two circuits would be affected.

Campaign Closed Early

Baker insisted on the Sept. 1 deadline so the majors moved to wind up their seasons on that date. When he was told that plans hadn't been made for a world series, the secretary of war delayed the "work or fight" order for participating players. The Boston Red Sox then defeated the Chicago Cubs in the series which was held Sept. 5 to Sept. 11.

SPORT CHATTER

BY HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK, July 8.—By way of giving ball players credit for everything, the International league plans to publish a separate set of statistics this season covering performances during innings wiped out of the regular record by rain, curfews or other acts of providence or the dimout.

Posting out that the rules once gave credit only for the number of bases to bring in the winning run when a player broke up a game with a homer, finger filbert Ernie Lanigan asks why not give them credit for these odd fragments of innings, too?

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

Al Buck, New York Post: "Smart baseball executives wonder: In their idle moments, if Dixie Dean broadcasting from Sportsman's park has not become a bigger attraction than the Browns. There is no doubt that when Dix first started he interested women in the game and brought them to the ball park. Now people may find Dean's mouthy reports more interesting than the Browns themselves."

SOUND PLATFORM

Ben Kilgore, candidate for nomination as governor of Kentucky, ought to win a lot of votes on his "plank" boosting foxhunting. "In view of the increased importance of scouting in modern Pacific warfare," says Kilgore, "the success which our troops have had may be attributed largely to superior scouting. There is no better school for scouting than foxhunting, and a large percentage of our Kentucky boys are past-masters in the hunting field, and they constitute a large percentage of the troops now in that area." Wonder what the coon hunters will have to say about that?

UNANSWERED QUESTION

The Dodgers have scheduled a "waste fat day" (and no cracks about the fat waists some of them are sporting) for Saturday, but what'll they do if the customers insist on delivering the waste, can and all, in the general direction of any players who may displease them?

AMERICAN BRED by FRANKEN MELONEY

CHAPTER I

It had been one of those early March days that start with the caress of spring, and end with the full venom of winter. Ann Rivers strained her eyes to see through the sleet-encrusted windshield. There had been no threat of stormy weather as she had turned her little coupe out of her sister's driveway in Bar Harbor that morning but, halfway through Massachusetts, clouds had commenced to roll across the horizon, and now a heavy wind threatened to sweep the light car off the road.

She filled up with gas in Providence, and asked for a road map which she knew she couldn't read. She was fairly adequate with a flat tire, but a road map always gave her an inferiority complex like knowing the capitals of the states, or naming the presidents beginning with Washington. She flicked it open, however, and then, after a proper lapse of time, folded it up again and gave the attendant a sunny smile. "Which way would you suggest to New York?" she asked companionably, and he said, "Route 84 through to New London is quickest, and you miss the Post Road traffic."

"Thanks," she said, and drove off, feeling as if she had picked his pocket while his back was turned. On the fringe of Providence, the sleet began, with the road glazing and her progress slowed to a snail's pace. She wasn't crazy about sleet but she couldn't help admitting what it did to the landscape. A grove of maples, transformed into a fairyland of shimmering silver, held her gaze an instant too long. The car swerved and there was the crunch of a fender against the bank, followed by a complacent slump of the springs, like a dumpy old lady settling into a chair.

Ann used the best of the worst words she knew, and put the car into reverse. The tires sang against icy soil, but the car merely pretended to move, rocking gently back and forth to an accompaniment of squeaks and groans. She tried first gear. The tires kept on singing, but the car failed this time even to rock.

Ann gritted her teeth and used the word over again, adding a couple of robust phrases to tell off. She got out on the road and tried to push. It was only a gesture, but it showed her intentions. While she was doing it a car approached. She waved her arms for help and yelled, "Yohoo!"

The lights blinked at her with a knowing leer, and then one went out entirely, and an ancient sedan loaded to overflowing with children and suitcases clattered past her and disappeared into the enveloping dusk.

In about five minutes a chauffeur-driven limousine hummed smoothly into sight. If fenders could be drawn up in disdain, Ann felt the limousine's draw up like a dowager's dress before a beggar's impudence. She had the flashing vision of an old man slumped down in the back seat, nervously chewing on a cigar. He's in a hurry to meet a bad case of dyspepsia, she thought as the limousine flashed by.

The road was empty of cars. With the coming of the storm, most of the traffic must have taken the main Post Road, which she had gone to such pains to avoid. She remembered having passed a group of roadside cottages about half a mile back. She was almost certain to find a telephone there, and somewhere in this lost corner of the state a service station would probably be functioning.

High heels made her progress as treacherous as walking on greased cobblestones with stilettos. Her hair blew out from under her hat, streaking wetly across her face, with the short ends whipping into her eyes. She twisted an ankle, and she thrashed the air to regain her balance, she felt the small crisp snap of a shoulder strap. Tears welled into her eyes. She could stand the crumpled fender, the cars that wouldn't stop, and the sharp pain that tore through wrenched muscles, but nothing in the world could sap one's self-confidence like a broken shoulder strap.

From the branch of a gigantic maple tree, the sign bade Ann welcome.

It seemed an eternity before the lights of what seemed to be the main house loomed up out of the driving slash of the rain, and a sign, swinging and screeching from the branch of a gigantic maple, bade her welcome to the Tru-Frend Tourist Bungalows. Her lips grew dry as a world of Kopy Kamps and Dew Drop Inns passed through her mind. TRU-FREND, forsooth!

A deep puddle lay in wait for her, and trapped her maliciously at the foot of the porch stairs. Shaking her sodden slipper like a duck, she knocked at the dark door, and then after a long empty silence, fumbled impatiently for the bell. She found a little knob in the middle of the door panel, and turned it, pleased to hear a fire-gong report sound from somewhere within. She remembered, as a child, just such a bell on her grandfather's house. If you took a firm hold of the knob, and turned it violently and let go of it, it would make several revolutions all by itself, with a clangor fit to wake the dead.

She grasped the knob and then thought better of it. She had once spun her grandfather's bell just to hear it ring, and had been rewarded with the flat of her grandfather's hand across a convenient part of her anatomy. No! Now was not the time to play with people's front doors. A well-learned lesson is never forgotten, and a spanking for bell-ringing would be the ultimate indignity of a series of indignities. She was beginning to think that no one was home, when the door swung open. A dim shape planted itself squarely on the threshold, and a man's voice demanded from the cavernous darkness, "What do you want?"

"The greeting was devoid of any vestige of cordiality. Ann felt that she had been grossly taken in. There was no Tru-Frend about him. He should have his bell rung good and hard."

"I want to come in!" Her voice mounted as a trickle of water from the eaves gathered on her hat brim and then emptied itself in one icy current down her back. "The voice from the darkness spoke, with a fair degree of logic. 'Well,' it said, 'why don't you come in?'"

"Why don't you get out of the way, and I will!"

The figure stood aside, and she marched forward into the gloom. Crack! She doubled up and grasped her shin-bone. "Bump into something?" the voice asked with interest. "What do you think I did? I could have killed myself!"

"You'd have come a long way on a bad night to do it here. Next time, hold your horses," Mr. Tru-frend advised, and turned up the light. Ann cast a malevolent glance at the chair which had attacked her. "Have you a telephone?" she requested. He made no answer. He just looked at her, with a small grin tugging at the corners of his rather full lips. In the light, she saw that he was a nice-looking young man, dressed in high boots laced over blue jeans, and a flannel shirt. He had a round face and very blue eyes, but for all his boyishness, he exuded a kind of physical strength and arrogance. "I'll bet he's got a temper as bad as mine," Ann thought.

"You look a sight," he informed her, still grinning. "Like a drenched pup."

"I asked you if you had a telephone," she repeated with aloofness. "Sure, we've got a telephone." She was annoyed with herself for flushing beneath the bold impudence of his amusement. "Where is it, please?"

"Right next to you." She turned and came face to face with an old-fashioned wall instrument. "Thank you." She whirled the crank, and put the receiver to her ear. "Operator!" She waited. "Operator!" She frowned. "I think it's out of order," she told him.

"I know it's out of order," the young man amended. "It's been out of order all afternoon. Storm." She wanted to pick up the same chair that had bumped into her, and throw it at him. "Then why didn't you tell me?" she demanded. "Just a minute, lady," he interrupted brusquely. "You knew all the answers, and were telling me, not asking me. Now suppose you calm down and let's hear what the trouble is. And remember, a fresh dame don't cut any ice where I'm concerned."

Those doggoned kids!

Give 'em a screw-driver and a pair of pliers and they'll make anything run!"

The colonel's "kids" had come upon a broken-down French tank in North Africa. They were told it would never run again.

That was a dare to boys who loved machinery. They worked on the old tank until it grunted and lurched across the field!

The story of "those doggoned kids" is true—and so is its American moral.

The boys sweated those extra hours, not at bayonet point, but freely. They saw a job to do and they pitched in! That's the spirit that made America grow!

And that same spirit built

America's electric companies. Many of the business men who manage them today were linemen, clerks, meter readers—folks who saw a job to do and pitched in.

Result? Better service at lower prices! The average American family gets twice as much electricity for its money as it did about 15 years ago. And at the same time—

These companies under experienced business management are supplying over 80 per cent of America's wealth of electric power! For more power for war production than in all the Axis countries combined!
